1. Claims 1-25 are pending

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(e) as being anticipated by Murray [6,392,668 B1].

3. As per claim 1, Murray discloses a data display system implemented by configuring generic client software (i.e.: software module), the data display system comprising:

a data display frame configured to display a current data record [Murray, the browser displays a current page, col 5 lines 52-col 6 line 6]; and a data list frame configured to display a first set of data identifiers and having a current data identifier marker for indicating a current data identifier corresponding to the current data record [Murray, the software module selects the corresponding marker from the list. The marker generation module inserts the marker along with coordinates indicating proper display position and other parameters into the current page, col 6 lines 48-64].

4. As per claim 2, Murray discloses a parent frame containing the data display frame and the data list frame [Murray, current page 245, and the marker list 262, Fig 2].
5. As per claim 3, Murray discloses the parent frame further comprises a plurality of command scripts [Murray, Java applet, col 5 lines 24-35, marker code, col 12 lines 5-10].
6. As per claim 4, Murray discloses the data display frame further comprises a next button associated with a next command script from the plurality of command scripts [Murray, a designated button, col 10 lines 8-19].
7. As per claim 5, Murray discloses the data display frame further comprises a previous button associated with a previous command script from the plurality of command scripts [Murray, other predefined icon, col 10 lines 46-57].
8. As per claim 6, Murray discloses the next command script is configured to request a new current data record as inherent feature of predetermined program [Murray, a predetermined rpogram, col 11 lines 7-25].
9. As per claim 7, Murray discloses the next command script is also configured to update the current data identifier marker [Murray, insert code corresponding to a select the marker into the current page, col 6 line 28-col 7 line 5].

Art Unit: 2142

10. As per claim 8, Murray discloses the next command script is also configured to request a second set of data identifiers when the current data record corresponds to a last data identifier in the first set of data identifiers as inherent feature of a list identifier [Murray, identifier list 260, Fig 2].

11. As per claim 9, Murray discloses the current data identifier marker is an arrow as a design choice.

12. As per claim 10, Murray discloses the current data identifier marker is signified by highlighting the current data identifier [Murray, highlighting effects, col 5 lines 37-50; col 6 lines 28-47].

13. As per claim 11, Murray discloses the data list frame includes a set of status markers for the set of data identifiers [Murray, marker list 262 and identifier list 260, Fig 2].

14. As per claim 12, Murray discloses the data display system is an email client [Murray, email, col 5 lines 23-50].

15. As per claim 13, Murray discloses the generic client software is a web browser [Murray, web browser 242, Fig 2].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

16. Claims 14-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Murray [6,392,668 B1] in view of Swartz et al [Swartz 6,236,994 B1].

17. As per claim 14, Murray discloses a method of configuring generic client software (to synchronize a first frame with second frame), the method comprising:

creating a parent frame (i.e.: client software) containing the first frame (i.e.: marker list) and the second frame (i.e.: identifier list) [Murray, client software 248, Fig2];

storing a plurality of commands for the first frame and second frame in the parent frame [Murray, market list 262 and identifier list 260, Fig 2]; and storing a plurality of variables for the first frame and second frame in the parent frame [Murray, parsing and comparison 266, Fig 2].

However Murray does not detail the client software synchronize a first frame with second frame. It was well-known in the Internet art that a software could integrate the metadata from different sources or frames as taught by Swartz [Swartz, application interoperability and synchronization between document and data sources, col 20 line 65-col 21 line 17; send mail; col 11 lines 1-67; Web based reports 124, Fig 3].

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the client software synchronize a first frame (document) with a second frame (data source) as taught by Swartz into the Murray's apparatus in order to utilize the client software. Doing so would provide the efficiency and flexibility to access and retrieve data over Internet.

18. Claims 13-25 contain the similar limitations set forth of apparatus claims 2-13.

Therefore, claims 13-25 are rejected for the similar rationale set forth in claims 2-13.
